

HOW GOLEX STANDS OUT:
A COMPARISON OF HOME
SELLING OPTIONS FOR FAST CASH SALES

LET'S DIVE IN

Selling a home is often a complex, time-consuming, and stressful process, particularly when using traditional real estate methods. Homeowners must navigate lengthy listings, costly repairs, agent commissions, financing uncertainties, and the risk of deals falling through. However, there are alternative home selling options designed to make the process easier, faster, and more predictable.

One such solution is selling to Golex Properties, a reputable cash home buyer operating in Florida and Georgia. How Golex stands out from other buyers is through their specialization in purchasing homes as-is, even with tenants in place, offering homeowners a quick and efficient way to sell their properties without hidden fees, agent commissions, or unnecessary complications.

This guide explores the different home selling options, the challenges of traditional methods, and how Golex stands out as the best alternative for a fast, stress-free, and transparent home sale.

Traditional Home Selling

Methods and Their Challenges

Many homeowners opt for traditional selling methods, either by working with a real estate agent or listing the home themselves as a For Sale By Owner (FSBO). While these approaches may work for some, they often present significant challenges that can make the selling process more frustrating than anticipated.

Selling Through a Real Estate Agent

Hiring a real estate agent is the most common way homeowners sell their properties. Agents provide market expertise, list homes on the Multiple Listing Service (MLS), and help with negotiations. However, this method has drawbacks that can create delays, unexpected costs, and uncertainty.

The Challenges of Working with an Agent

Time on Market:

The average home sits on the market for 55–70 days, plus an additional 30–45 days for closing. That means homeowners may wait up to four months or more before receiving their funds.

Repair and Staging Costs:

To attract buyers, real estate agents often recommend repairs, renovations, and staging. On average, homeowners spend $15,000 on these improvements before listing.

Commission Fees:

Standard agent commissions range from 5–6% of the home's sale price, significantly cutting into the seller's profits.

Uncertain Closings:

Approximately 20–30% of pending home sales fall through due to financing issues, low appraisals, or buyer contingencies.

Example Cost Breakdown of Selling with an Agent

EXPENSE	COST ESTIMATE
Repairs & Staging	$10,000 – $25,000
Agent Commission (6%	$18,000 (on a $300,000 home)
Closing Costs (2%)	$6,000
Buyer Negotiations	Varies
Total Potential Costs	$34,000+

GOLEX Properties Solutions

Golex Properties eliminates all these concerns by buying homes as-is, with no repairs, commissions, or closing costs, and closing in as little as a week.

Selling For Sale By Owner (FSBO)

Some homeowners attempt to sell their homes without an agent to save on commission fees. This method is known as For Sale By Owner (FSBO). While it may seem like a way to maximize profits, it often leads to marketing struggles, prolonged sale timelines, and complex legal paperwork.

Challenges of FSBO

Limited Exposure: FSBO sellers lack access to the MLS, the primary platform for serious buyers.

Marketing Costs: Professional photography, online ads, and yard signs can add up quickly.

Complex Negotiations: Homeowners must negotiate directly with buyers, real estate attorneys, and inspectors.

Legal and Paperwork Requirements: Sellers must navigate contracts, disclosures, and closing processes without professional guidance.

Longer Sale Timeline: FSBO listings take an average of 68 days to sell—longer than agent-listed properties.

Example FSBO Costs

EXPENSE	COST ESTIMATE
MLS Listing Fee	$100 – $500
Professional Photos	$300 – $600
Marketing & Ads	$200 – $1,000
Legal & Paperwork Fees	$1,000 – $2,500
Total Potential Costs	$1,600 – $4,600
